

Accessathon Code of Conduct

Open

Members of the community are open to collaboration. We can deal with constructive comment and criticism, as the experiences and skill sets of other participants contribute to the whole of our efforts. We're accepting of all who wish to take part in our activities, fostering an environment where anyone can participate and everyone can make a difference.

Considerate

Members of the community are considerate of their peers. We're thoughtful and appreciating when addressing the efforts of others. We're attentive in our communications, whether in person or online, and we're tactful when approaching differing views.

Respectful

Members of the community are respectful. We're respectful of others, their positions, their skills, their commitments, and their efforts.

When we disagree, we seek for a solution in a polite and friendly manner.

Overall, we're good to each other.

Inclusive

All participants should be able to join and enjoy the activities related to the hackathon regardless of their gender, heritage, religion, appearance or impairments. We make a common effort to make everyone as comfortable as possible. Discrimination will not be tolerated.

To allow others to join, we always leave some free space whenever we have a group discussion.

We contribute to this community not because we have to, but because we want to. If we remember that, these guidelines will come naturally.